1. This refers to the copyright owned by the party that RECORDED this material, NOT the original artist / author.
2. Licensed sound recordings / sampled content will require permission from the copyright owner in the form of a Master Use License.
3. Publishing rights are generally owned by the original composer; if you are the original composer, you should check "owned" in this category. If the track in question was composed by someone else; often referred to as a "cover song", you must check "licensed" and furnish Superdups with copies of your Mechanical License.
4. Tracks of third-party compositional origin ("cover songs") will require a Mechanical License.
5. Masters with additional multimedia content; "enhanced" masters will also require completion of the Superdups® content information form for CD-ROM / Video.
